

Crowd Funding

People traditionally looked out for funding from the investment (selling of company shares POV), and also debt funding (increasing of liabilities in the books). That will drastically affect the balance sheet of the company.

However, Crowd Funding leverages on the market forces, that traditionally a lot of business have no options to choose. Direct access of the market allows you to procure prepayment from the customers themselves rather than sacrificing shares in your company to get money for production.

Crowd Funding is more than just allowing access for money necessary to run a business. The point being, if there is no prepayment for your services or products is there a point to even start the business. You might as well just refine your products / services rather than wasting your products that has no market need.

Crowd Funding is going to revolutionize business if it has not already done so. For thousands of years, we only had this opportunity now of "raise funding" from customers through pre-payments to fund your production and research & development.

Make good use of Crowd Funding in your business. If you do it well, you will attract greater number of investors who can grow your business more.

Types of Crowd Funding
